The one question frequently asked and, of course, the juntor champion was anxious to even the score. He took the first two holes and was one up at the turn, but the far driving Southerner squared accounts at the twelfth. All of going at and beat McLoughlin to-morthe remaining holes were halved but the through the crowd to-day was, "Can Griffin .... squared accounts at the twelfth. All of the remaining holes were halved but the seventeenth, about 311 yards long. Whitney was almost hole high on his drive and he made his three to Carter's five, so the advantage was held to the end.

Lewis had rarely been so helpless on his tee shots as he was this afternoon against Whitney, and under the circumagainst Whitney. stances it was a fearful handicap. Whitney won seven of the first eight holes, and he was still seven up at the end he has none of the old snap, vim and of the eleventh. As he then was dormie, all the Southerner required was a half, but Lewis, with rare gameness, straights speed which he did ever since he made his debut on the court and the amount of matches have commenced to tell on him. He is not the same carefree young man

Brindle defeated James R. Hyde of South Shore, by 3 up and 2 to play, and the collegian went along at a clip which would have brought him home in about 78. Kirkby had little difficulty and Gardiner White had even an easier time seldom uses the cannon ball serve that the made famous and his terrettee. Gardiner White had even an easier time of it. Playing in the fourth, beaten eight James A. Tyng, the chairman of the Metropolitan handicap committee, holed a mashie shot of 125 yards on the home hole for a three. The shot was completely blind. C. G. Comstock, Jr., of Sieepy Hollow, was his opponent and was dormie one. Tyng squared the match but lost on the nineteenth. The summary:
